THE MOUNTAINS
 The mountain people have a different way of life from the valley people. They are more independent and more self-reliant. They are more conservative and more traditional. They are more proud and more dignified. They are more honest and more straightforward. They are more loyal and more devoted. They are more brave and more courageous. They are more patient and more persevering. They are more hardy and more resilient. They are more resourceful and more inventive. They are more enterprising and more ambitious. They are more energetic and more industrious. They are more cheerful and more optimistic. They are more confident and more self-assured. They are more dignified and more respectable. They are more noble and more heroic. They are more virtuous and more moral. They are more patriotic and more loyal. They are more patriotic and more loyal. They are more patriotic and more loyal.

There is a beautiful mountain scene in the hills of the Pocahontas. The mountains are rugged and grand. The valleys are fertile and verdant. The waterfalls are majestic and powerful. The forests are dense and lush. The climate is mild and pleasant. The scenery is beautiful and inspiring. The mountains are a source of pride and glory for the people who live there. They are a source of strength and courage. They are a source of wisdom and knowledge. They are a source of joy and happiness. They are a source of life and vitality. They are a source of hope and faith. They are a source of love and compassion. They are a source of peace and harmony. They are a source of beauty and grace. They are a source of power and majesty. They are a source of awe and wonder. They are a source of awe and wonder.

The middle aged and older Pocahontas people will readily recognize in the above picture the likeness of Col. Wm. H. Terrell, for many years a prominent attorney at the Huntersville bar. The picture is from a photograph found among the papers of the late J. T. Hoevert, of Millpoint, and very kindly loaned us by his son, S. L. Hoevert.

WM. H. TERRELL, ESQ.
 For more than fifty years this gentleman was one of the most prominent and influential persons in the legal and political history of Pocahontas county.

Sometimes I would find him upon being sent for, in much depression and fearful agitation. "O my friend, everything around me reminds me of neglected duties," and then he would tell "the sad tale of his career." At other times I would find him calm and pleasant, with a poem he wanted me to hear him read. It seems to me that I have never heard anyone read more impressively than he would at such times. Even now as I write I seem to see and hear him as he read, Gray's Elegy. The carver tells the knell of parting day. The lowing herd winds slowly o'er the lea. The ploughman homeward plods his weary way. And leaves the world to darkness and to me.

Another favorite was the pleasure of hope by Campbell. At summer eve when Heaven's eternal bow Spans with bright arch the glittering hills below. 'Tis distance lends enchantment to the view. And robes the mountain in its azure hue.

I have never heard any one recite more impressively what Moore says of the silent harp in Tara's halls. Such is the tribute I would personally pay to the memory of one of the most remarkable and influential persons that ever lived and moved among our Pocahontas people.

KRYDER
 Elmer and Glen Hill working on Chest. Sugar making is in full way here now. O. G. Arbogast is conducting a singing school at the Kerr school house. The Kerr school closed Friday with a football game in the afternoon between the school boys and Arbovale. The Arbovale team was composed of the following players: John Slaven, Will Riley, Luther Woodell, Tommy Simmons, Granval and Floy Gillispie, Arthur and Cliff Hailer, Lex and Jim Gregory and Glen Lambert. The school team: W. P. Starcher, Earl Wilfong, Clyde Gillispie, Mack Thompson, Fred Conrad, Julian Nottingham, Guy Grogg, Strickler Arbogast, Paul Thompson, Charles Hogue, and Forrest Thompson. Score: Kerr school 2 Arbovale 1.

Saturday morning W. F. Starcher, teacher of the Kerr school, and Miss Goldie Hill, one of his pupils for three years, started for Marlinton to be married. Missing the train, they were married at Hatterman by Rev. C. B. Collins. After visiting friends here they will go to housekeeping at Ripley, W. Va., where a position awaits Mr. Starcher in his father's store, known as the Starcher Hardware Company. After the football game Friday W. P. Starcher tossed a pair of old pants he had been playing in, aside near the school house. The next morning before leaving for Marlinton he was looking over his goods in the way of money he found missing one pocketbook containing $42.00. As he and his intended passed the school house, he suddenly remembered the discarded garments, and exclaimed, "I know now where that money is!" Sure enough, there it was, although it had been put there at 3 p. m. the evening before. Many people had been all around and over it. Mr. Starcher and Miss Hill took such luck as a good omen.

THE AUGUSTA COUNTY RECORDS

By Frederick J. Haskin, in the Wheeling News.

For a number of years genealogists have been discussing the value of a series of papers known as the Chalkley manuscripts, so called because they are copies made by Judge Lyman Chalkley, of Staunton, Virginia, of the old court house records of Augusta county at a period when the territory of several states was included in that county. The publication of these records, which will probably be concluded within the current year, is regarded by many as one of the most important genealogical achievements of the world. There is no single genealogical publication in existence in either Europe or America which contains information valuable to people in so many localities.

A genealogist known in Europe and America for his published works, divides the settlement of the original American states into three major divisions: the settlement of Jamestown, Virginia, by English Royalists; the settlement of New England by the Puritans; and the settlement of Augusta County by the Scotch-Irish Presbyterians, the first party of which came to America in 1737. Most of these people came from Ulster in North Ireland, where they had been encouraged to emigrate by James I of Scotland after that portion of Ireland had been devastated and almost depopulated by its long series of wars. Because of the numerous difficulties arising over land titles in Ireland, these people after a residence of a century or more in Ireland, began to emigrate to America in large numbers. Despite their residence in Ireland they had preserved their Scottish characteristics, as well as their religious principles, and their many sterling qualities made them a most important factor in the settlement of this country.

Almost without exception they had large families and from the first had scant affiliation with the English people who had settled eastern Virginia and who were supporters of the established church. These Scotch-Irish settlers pushed farther and farther west as they were able to drive the Indians before them and make for themselves homes where they could worship God as they chose. Besides those Scotch-Irish who came in thousands between 1730 and 1750, Augusta county's early settlers included a considerable number of the Germans and Swiss who had first settled in Pennsylvania, but moved southwest when it was decided that no more grants of Pennsylvania land should be made until the youngest son of the Pater family should attain his majority.

The act establishing Augusta County was passed in 1738 and the county was organized in 1745 as a part of Virginia. Its population was made up almost exclusively of the Scotch-Irish settlers, with a few Pennsylvania Germans who became more numerous a number of years later. At this time the territory extended to Fort Pitt, by the Virginians then called Fort Dumore, in Pennsylvania, where Pittsburgh now stands. It included most of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, part of Michigan, and all of Kentucky, besides West Virginia, which did not become a separate state until 1863.

Because of the varying statements regarding the value of these old documents to genealogy, a brief statement as to their contents has been given out. They include every appointment to any kind of public office during this period, with every name that appears upon any paper, miscellaneous or otherwise. There are abstracts giving the essential points of every deed, every will and every land grant, with the reports of all commissions, tax lists, delinquent lists, marriages and marriage bonds, lists of French and Indian War and Revolutionary soldiers, pension declarations and many other subjects.

The material of these manuscripts were scattered for years in number of places more or less difficult of access, for there were a number of towns where courts were held in this large territory. The rich historical value of the Augusta county records is attested by the fact that the Carnegie Museum of Historical Research has published excerpts from them in a number of bulletins, including among them the records of death-entombment at Fort Dumore, Pittsburgh, in 1775 and 1776.

Judge Chalkley had the advantage of access to these old documents, which were so ill arranged that no one had any knowledge of their contents, and he spent years making a copy of them or a brief of the contents of those which were too voluminous to be given in full. Frequently he would find a long searched for will in a bundle of land grants or he would run across a long forgotten will hidden in the dust of a property. The fact that so many of these old documents could not be located by genealogists has caused many to doubt their existence. Many old records, which have been believed to have been destroyed, have been identified and copied. This publication this year will make it possible for thousands of individuals to connect the missing links of their family history more accurately than a professional genealogist could do it without them.

THE AGUSTA COUNTY RECORDS

Continued from first page. In every state in the Union, these full records have been a matter of importance.

Genologists in England, Scotland and Germany frequently send for information from the Augusta county records.

While the immigration from New England helped to populate the northern part of the states of the middle west, the great bulk of the western population of this country has been proved to have been derived from the original confines of old Augusta county.

The work of preparing these old records for public use was undertaken by Judge Chaikley not for money, but for the purpose of erecting a historical monument to his own name.

OWN A CHAMPION CAR

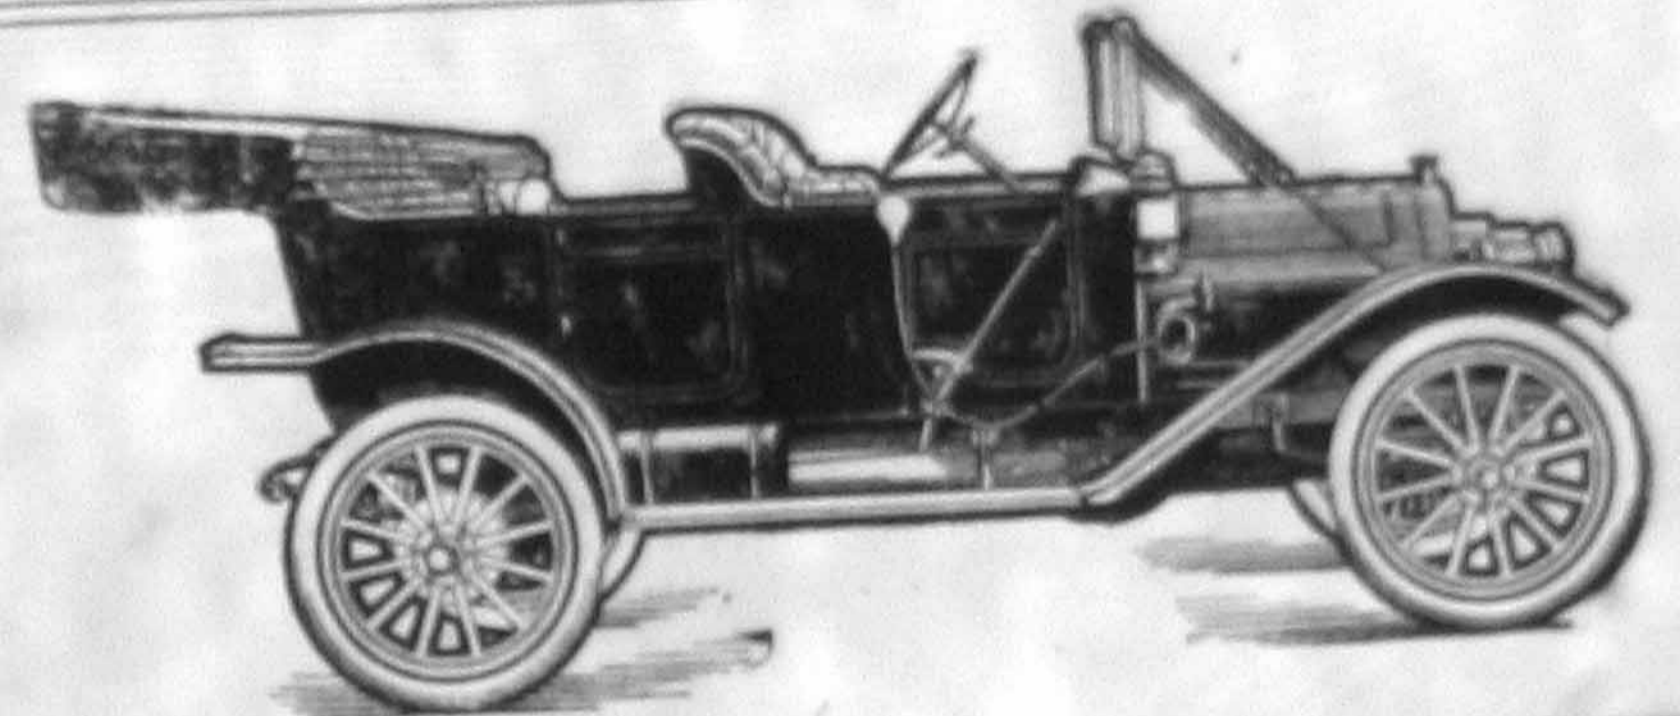

It's only human for a man to feel proud of his possessions. To own something which everyone else recognizes as supremely desirable helps mightily to make life better worth living.

Ownership of a motor car confers a distinction of this sort. But the distinction is infinitely greater when that low class reputation history.

To own a Champion Motor Car should be the aim of every wise buyer.

It's pleasant to know that a champion motor car is not necessarily an expensive one. You can buy an E-M-F "30" four door 5 passenger car for $1100 or a Flanders "20" four door 5 passenger for $800.

Each is the champion of its class.

E-M-F "30"

E-M-F "30"

The motoring world is still ringing with the marvelous feat of the three E-M-F "30" cars that finished one, two, three in the Tiedman Trophy race at Savannah—the biggest event of the year for the cars of that class. The setting of nine new world's marks for the smaller class by the Flanders "20" at Indianapolis is a speed feat unique in the son's records. You and your friends have heard time and again of the triumphs these cars have scored on road track and hill. Among cars of popular price all over the world they stand supreme in speed, strength, safety and stamina. More convincing still is the satisfactory service these cars are doing in the hands of more than 50,000 owners, all over the world. An E-M-F "30" or a Flanders "20" is the sort of car its owner loves to talk about.

Age's Handicap.
A gentleman who married recently at the age of seventy-three years says that he is nearly a state of mind, and believes that one may remain young if one will refrain from having old ideas. The great trouble is that it is almost impossible for an old gentleman who has been on living young thoughts to get other people to decline to refer to him as "an old soul."

A PLAIN STATEMENT

To the Stock Men, Wool Growers and Farmers of Pocahontas and Adjoining Counties:

WE want to state a few reasonable reasons why you should sell your wool and lambs to the Marlinton Meat Company. A statement that cannot be backed by reasons is like a ship without motive power. It will not go very far these practical days.

We are here in the field and are recognized as perfectly responsible by the largest farmers, business men and financial concerns in the county. We have faithfully fulfilled every promise and obligation that we have made. We have paid in cash more money to the farmers than any other man or concern in the county or that does business in the county. We at all times pay the best prices for the products that we handle, and pay it in spot cash which gives us the reputation of being the best paymasters in the county. Our every act has been watched by keen conservative business men, and we challenge criticism notwithstanding the fact that some derogatory statements have been made by petty jealous individuals who will tell you if you don't give him the chance to skin you the other fellow will. We have no axe to grind; ours is sharp and we will hew to the line.

We say that we are in better position to handle your wool and lambs than any other parties in the county. This firm will make no deal with you that we will not fulfill to the dot. We are proud of our record and will maintain it in every respect. Talk it over with your neighbors; they will give you additional reasons why you should come in and talk it over with us.

Respectfully,

Marlinton Meat Company

PENURIOUS POLICIES

Commissioner Edward of New York discussing the penurious policy of a western city, said to a reporter: "It reminds me of Grimes. Grimes you know, was a rich Irish country farmer. One day he was out on his path digging away like mad in the frozen snowdrifts. Though it was very weather, Grimes was stripped to his undershirt, and amid the white snow clouds flying from his shovel he could be seen all red with effort and dripping with perspiration. "What in the world is he doing?" a traveler asked, as he looked with awe at the great holes and tunnels cut by Grimes in the snow. "Hah," said a bystander, "he's lost a stick!"—Washington Star.

Lost Treasure

A man who went half way around the world on a wild-goose chase for a supposed buried treasure, continued from New York to Salt Lake for the pleasure of tracking the man who told him the story of a great treasure which did not exist. If he will now employ somebody with an adequate sized boat to take care of his own case the incident will have reached the logical conclusion.

Poverty

Poverty is dishonorable not in itself, but when it is a proof of laziness, intemperance, luxury and carelessness; whereas in a person that is temperate, industrious, just and valiant, and who sees all his virtues for the public good, it shows a great and noble mind. For he has no time for great matters who concerns himself with petty ones; not can he relieve many needs of others, who himself has many needs of his own.—Plutarch.

Some People

The trouble with some people is that they want to draw compound interest for life on the little charitable deeds they do just for the purpose of keeping the world from suspecting that they are cold-hearted and stingy.

Stringent Austrian Laws

Austrians are liable to arrest for less reasons if they vary the position of the postage stamp on a letter.

"I used to know your old grandfather, Henningus, and he was always poking his nose into other people's business, same as you are." Out-of-the-Way German Inns. Germany probably holds the record for out-of-the-way inns names. Berlin alone can boast the "Angry Louisa," the "Comfortable Lamb," the "Cold Frog," the "Dirty Parrot," the "Bloody House," the "Buckers Den," the "Four-hundred-Weight Man" and the "Musical Cate," whilst a suburban landlord, whose house stands near a cemetery and is a popular "pull up" for mourners, has dubbed it, very appropriately, the "Last Year."

Some Things that Endure

The of the "best" representative... This is the spirit of heart and of mind. That keeps the road blossoming with beauty and light And keeps the eyes open with far seeing sight.

The Manila Times

A highly appreciated pleasure has been recently enjoyed, for which grateful thanks are due...

The copy in hand is dated February 16, 1912, Vol. 4, No. 25, folio 48 pages. This weekly is edited with marked ability and almost makes one feel that if one wishes to hear what the truth is about pending affairs it would not be a bad idea to get from home far away at least as Manila. For illustration let what the Manila Times says about Mr. Shuster's withdrawal from Paris. Mr. Shuster became very prominent during his term of service in the Philippines, before his Persian appointment upon the recommendation of President Taft. In reference to severe criticism of Mr. Shuster's actions, The Weekly Times makes this remark: "There is no more sane than truth in this. The history of the Persian affairs may have shown—probably did show—that Shuster was little used and less inclined to the methods of modern diplomacy, whereas speed as much as regarded as given to men to counsel his thoughts, but nothing can take away from him (Shuster) the credit of having stood alone in a plucky attempt to help a helpless people. This credit he has been given. Full measures, pressed down and running over in the country of his birth, and we dare say he can stand some of the worst of things which the Department of Foreign Affairs provides."

For reasons too numerous to specify, but all most thoroughly illustrated by scenes of blood and war, this credit he should be remembered at the present time, by all persons of influential position in affairs of national importance, to this effect, that an effort or conflict of genuine sympathy is more likely to lead to lasting and permanent of spirit, than engineering and managing systems of government out of a conspiracy whose chief thought is to bring to the world and nations chaos. In these anxious days let it be the aim of those who would be true to the cause of a government, to be true to the cause of a government, to be true to the cause of a government.

A PAPER OF MANILA

We have before us The Weekly Times, published at Manila, in the Philippine Islands. It is a paper of about the size of the Saturday Evening Post, and sells for $1.20 per annum. It seems to be the Conservative American Journal of the Orient. Price per copy 12 centos. It is 4 years and 28 weeks old; Marvin Egan, Managing Director.

One of the most important questions of the islands is whether English is to be made the sole language of the courts. Judge Corson, a justice of the supreme court and an American, goes on record to say that to make the English language the sole language of the courts would be an act of tyranny, indefensible and inexorable.

The paper takes issue with him. It points to the fact that eight years ago there were law schools in those islands which were teaching law in English which have wholly abandoned their English courses and replaced them with those given in Spanish. That there are judges who eight years ago were passionate students of English who today plead ignorance of the language of the people who have taken over the destinies of the islands.

The language of the people of the islands is a native dialect that must be translated into Spanish, and why not in English. Then there are the thousands of public school graduates who have taken courses in English upon the promise of the government to make English the language of the islands. The corps of translators in the employ of every court will in a measure compensate for the making of English the sole language of the courts.

Mike Beacham is about to be hung for murder. On May 11, 1908, he was a trooper of the 1st Cavalry. Enraged by the rough joking of his comrades he shot and killed Sergeant William Hoey Private Thomas F. Woodward, George Wilson and Edward T. Clark.

He made no attempt to escape and was sentenced to imprisonment for life. He was warned that an appeal might change his sentence to that of death, but he took the appeal, and carried it through the courts to Washington to the Supreme Court. The result is that he will be hung.

At the Tin Can Camp, in Jolo, a detachment of scouts under Lieutenant W. G. Muldoon, have had a battle with the Moros, and three scouts have been wounded. Also at Tin Can Camp two native gents did run amuck and were killed by the guard.

Some high officials have started off to visit certain portions of the main island by train and automobiles. They are to hold a number of "concessions." These are meetings where the head men assemble with the people and have athletic games and barbecue cattle. Any differences existing are submitted to the council and decided.

Two cups as prizes are offered in contests among the three soccer clubs of Manila. Soccer football is the kind we play in Pocahontas.

The market report is confined to six staples: Hoop, sugar, copra, rice, gum, almonds, and coals.

Miss Julia D. Kite, the seven year old daughter of Lieutenant Wm F. Kite, has traveled 47,000 miles already.

John, the passenger on the F. D. Q. R. R. had a row with the conductor, and declared that hereafter the railroad would never see a cent of his money for he would stop buying tickets and pay the conductor.

Miss Marygrove's husband was not a very bright chap. He not only did not know anything, but did not even suspect anything.

LETTER FROM TRIPOLI

The following letter from the seat of war in Tripoli, by a general in the Turkish army, is in Arabic and by him translated and kindly handed to us. Their home was near Damascus. The General, Hay Abu Bekk, is a man of about forty years, a Christian, his grandfather being over a kingdom in northern Syria, and being cut by an invasion of the French.

Dear Friend—I will write you today from the Akothman Troop. I came from Syria through the eastern line. I got to Tripoli December 22. The war was going on. The Akothman with their friends the Arabs had a good stand and the advantage of the enemy. I have fought in several battles under the great leader Anwar Bayk, and we came out ahead in most of them, and now I am a leader of 7500 men, Arabs and Turks, at Darnus.

One of my men found a large amount of money on an Italian who was killed in the battle of January 15. He brought the money to me, and I sent it to Amer Bayk, and he sent it to the Italian leader, General Kanafsa, asking him to send the money to the people of the dead soldier. Often our men find money and checks and even postage stamps, which they bring to us and we send it to the General Italian leader, with the man's name if possible, when and where he was killed. Would the enemy do that?

We captured one of the enemy's leaders in the big battle, January 25, when my men and 12,500 Italians fought all day and charged on each other and fought with their sabres and swords. We whipped the enemy badly that day. Then the next day I called for the Italian leader before me. I asked him what he thought of the battle the day before. He said it was the biggest and bloodiest battle he had ever seen.

Where were you when you were captured? He answered, the last I know I was in front and your bullets came down on us from every direction like a hard rain pouring down from above, and then I saw my men were getting scared and began to gather together until they looked like a solid mass upon the ground. And it got worse. Your men charged on mine until we could not know friend from foe. I shut my eyes and waited for death, and in that instant I heard the swords ring close to me, but the smoke was like a heavy fog and dark like night. I said to myself have we whipped the enemy or the enemy whipped us. But before I turned around I felt some one lying my hands and saying surrender at once. The man was a Turk. I thought I was a dead man sure, but the man said, come, not be afraid, the Turk wont eat people. Then I looked to the left and right and saw most of my men down and the rest running. Then your men brought me over and they treated me alright. And now they bring me before you after they took me to the picnic.

This is what the Italian said. The Arabs and Turks generally have a picnic every time they whip the enemy.

We have most everything we need and we will whip the enemy or fight as long as long as we live. Your friend,

HEY ABEN BAYK.

HUNTERVILLE

Joy Poling is paying a visit to his grand parents at Belington. Prof. Silas Walker and wife, D. L. Walker and Miss Mae Hylbert started Monday for their homes in Roane county.

The Presbyterian Sunday school will be reorganized at this place at 10 o'clock Easter Sunday.

A. B. McComb was calling on friends on Cummings creek last Sunday.

Mrs. Price Moore, of Knapps Creek, visited Mrs. Zane Moore last week.

Miss Anna Lye Ervine went to Marlinton last week to stay a few weeks.

Miss Daphnia Dearman, who taught the Sunset school, passed by here Tuesday on her way to Huntington where she will enter Marshall College.

Miss Clara Jordan, who taught the school at Sitlington, stopped here a few days last week with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Maymie Jordan.

Miss Mae Hylbert, who finished her school at Green Hill, spent last week with Mrs. Ida McComb, as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Walker.

Mrs. Joseph S. McNeel, of Academy, is visiting her father, William Curry, just above town.

Zane Moore expects to move to Minnehaha in the near future to open a hotel. We are sorry to lose him and his estimable family.

Cecil Sheets has moved his shingle mill near Iva Fitzgerald's residence where he will manufacture about fifty thousand shingles for S. I. Barlow.

Elmer Moore took his third ride on the Masonic goat here Saturday night and is now a full Belgal M. M.

Robert McQuinn, who is employed at Dunmore, was down to see his wife here last Saturday and Sunday.

Summers Sharp and G. R. Goodsell, of Marlinton, were here one day last week. Mr. Goodsell was talking fire insurance, but we imagine Mr. Sharp was trying to strengthen his political fence.

The music of the frogs, the howling of the owls, the singing of the birds, the voice of the plovers, the shouts of the frolic school children, all indicate the nearness of spring, beautiful spring.

Lavinia Fray closed her school in Hill, Friday, and passed by here Saturday on her way home.

All teachers should have had their examinations in the hands of the secretaries of the boards of education by April 1st.

The failure of the Tumble Lumber Company has greatly affected business in our section.

Quite a number of out of town people attended the school entertainment here Friday evening.

POCAHONTAS AND ROADS

By J. M. PARIS, in The West Virginia Motorist

When considering the proposed national highways the motorist closes his eyes and dreams of macadamized roads and one of them always runs by his own front yard.

This particular section of West Virginia, Pocahontas county, has swayed in a measure to the madfold blessings of good roads and will do a great deal of road work the coming year, and will make greater strides when the rural population realize that a good road is not especially built for the motor car; but that in the extra load the farmer can haul to town, the minimum wear and tear on his rolling stock, the small cost of upkeep on a properly built road, and that the good roads movement is really a fraternal organization with but one beneficiary, THE FARMER.

The County of Pocahontas is vitally interested in the road the national government might build from the East to the West, and on account of the number of mountains to cross and the small amount this county is able to spend, it would accelerate the completion of the work in contemplation of have government or State aid. The State of Virginia has the National pipe with a very excellent road from Staunton to Hot Springs and on the Jackson River Bridge. Starting from this point to Kinzel, which is on the State line, is fifty-two miles of average mountain road. From Kinzel to Marlinton, for the most part of the thirteen miles, is fair, as considerable of this road is blue shale, the balance sand and clay. From Kinzel to White Sulphur Springs, a distance of thirty-six miles, is yellow clay which is one of the best foundations for macadam work. From Marlinton to the Randolph county line one finds all kinds and conditions of roads crossing four mountains, but always on an extremely easy grade. Crossing into Randolph one follows the Tugays Valley River to Beverly, from thence to Bushyhead, Weston and down the little Kanawha river to Parkersburg and the highway attended the closing of our school. The many friends of our worthy fellow townsmen, Mr. J. C. Lourey have induced him to enter the race for annisor of this county. There is no more careful, painstaking and conscientious man in the county than Mr. Lourey and should be the nominee of the Democratic party, we know of no one who could get as much support from the Republican side as Mr. Lourey would be sure to have. If a man is wanted who will stand firm as a rock for the right, nominate J. C. Lourey, of Huntersville.

Last Friday witnessed the closing of a very successful term of school here, taught by Prof. Silas Walker and his brother Dwight L. both of Roane county. The afternoon was taken up by songs, recitations, and speeches by some of the patrons. In the evening was rendered a splendid program of songs, instrumental music, recitations, dialogues, comedies, farces, etc., which kept the vast audience occupied with enjoyment or moved to tears, for more than two hours. Many of the features deserve special comment, and many pupils, personal acquaintance, but the entertainment as a whole was good that we desire from any special comment for fear of not doing justice to all. At the close each of the teachers was presented with a handsome present by the pupils, and with many regrets that the parting time had come, the audience was dismissed. The Board of Education has asked both teachers to return next year and has received the definite promise of Prof. Walker and still hope that Mr. D. L. will see his way clear to return also, even if other schools are offering him better wages.

The bill introduced by Congressman Littlepage providing for the holding of a term of United States Court at Lewisburg has passed both houses and been approved by the President.
